"A man never stands so tall as when he kneels to help a child." The creed of Denver Active 20-30 certainly seemed appropriate after I met a few of its members in late July at the 10th Annual Denver Polo Classic.

"When we do these events, we are not networking, we do not do business - we are pure charity," said club president David Puchi.

Beautiful horses, beautiful people, delicious food and champagne. What more can a person ask for on a Sunday afternoon? How about raising more than $180,000 for charities such as Denver Kids Inc., Colorado Christian Home Tennyson Center and I Have a Dream Foundation?

Founding member Greg Sauber took a year off from Xerox to support a Denver Kids Inc. program called "School Works." With this type of dedication, it's understandable U S West wanted to be title sponsor. Guaranty Bank, IdealDial, MLF Foundation and Polo Reserve Development were major sponsors.

Among the 1,200 people in their polo whites were David Barnes; Mark Osborne; Dave Benson; Tui Kinney; Stephanie Erikson; Ron Allen and son Brian; Kip Fuller; Susan Fox with her parents, Allan and Katie Fox; Steven Christoffersen and girlfriend Dana Toll; Kent and Heidi Carlson; Victor DiLeo with girlfriend Marlene Bunch; and Todd MacIntosh.
